

Once upon a time, in a world of elves, two billion years ago, a young girl whose name was Katherina, lived in a village called the elves' forest. This girl was an elf, she was sixteen years old. She had brown and curly hair, her eyes were hazel-coloured and they had shiny reflections. She was courageous, brave and a little curious. Like every elf, she had a look that made you fall under her spell.

One day, while she was walking, she met a boy, his name was Peter. He had blond hair and blue eyes. He was an elf too. He was strong and nice. Peter and Katherina introduced themselves.

Peter said "Do you want to go with me to the other side of the city in the forbidden cave?" And Katherina answered "Why not!", she replied this because she was curious to discover if the legend was real or not.

People said there was a legend, it said that a few years before, one boy was walking when he arrived at the cave, the people didn't know what happened but the boy was never like before. The people said he had red eyes (blood red ) after that. The legend said whoever looked at him in her eyes, it would kill them. The only way to kill him was to plant an arrow in his heart.

So Peter and Katherina began walking to join the forbidden cave.

They were arriving at the cave that was after the forest, the sun was setting, they saw the cave and they hid.

Katherina took her bow, an arrow and she aimed at the heart of the boy.

But Katherina understood she knew this boy. This boy was her brother who had disappeared five years before.

Katherina fell down and crying. Peter tried to comfort her but he failed.